

International Productivity Monitor

The International Productivity Monitor is published by the Centre for the Study of Living Standards (CSLS) and The Productivity Institute (TPI) to support policy analysis and development in the productivity area. The objective of the Monitor is to focus attention on the importance of productivity for improving living standards and quality of life. The Monitor publishes high-quality articles on productivity issues, trends and developments in Canada and other countries and serves as a vehicle for the international discussion of productivity topics. Print and on-line versions are published twice a year. The articles are largely non-technical in nature and understandable to a wide audience of productivity researchers and analysts as well as the general public. The publication is distributed electronically to anyone interested in productivity issues on a complimentary basis. While most articles are invited, submissions will be considered.

Editors

Andrew Sharpe Centre for the Study of Living Standards
Bart van Ark University of Manchester and The Productivity Institute

Editorial Board

Dany Brouillette Innovation, Science and Economic Development Canada
Beata Caranci TD Bank
Wulong Gu Statistics Canada
Claude Lavoie Finance Canada
Eric Santor Bank of Canada

International Advisory Committee

Dan Andrews OECD
Martin N. Baily Brookings Institution
Ernie Berndt MIT
Nicholas Bloom Stanford University
Paul Conway Bank of New Zealand
Gilbert Cetté Banque de France
Erwin Diewert University of British Columbia
Lucy Eldridge U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics
John Fernald INSEAD and Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco
Dennis Fixler U.S. Bureau of Economic Analysis
Kevin Fox University of New South Wales
Barbara Fraumeni Central University for Economics and Finance
Robert J. Gordon Northwestern University
Jonathan Haskel Imperial College
Charles Hulten University of Maryland
Lawrence Jeffrey Johnson International Labour Organization
Dale Jorgenson Harvard University
Megan MacGarvie Boston University
Larry Mishel Economic Policy Institute
Giuseppe Nicoletti OECD
Mary O'Mahony King's College, University of London
Pascal Petit Université Paris-Nord
Marshall Reinsdorf McKinsey Global Institute
Jaana Remes OECD
Paul Schreyer Wellesley College
Daniel Sichel University of Chicago
Chad Syverson University of Manchester and The Productivity Institute
Anthony J. Venables Higher School of Economics, Moscow
Ilya Voskoboynikov New York University
Edward Wolff Peking University
Harry Wu

The opinions and views expressed in the Monitor are not necessarily those of the institutions with which members of the International Advisory Committee are affiliated.

Centre for the Study of Living Standards
170 Laurier Avenue West, Suite 604, Ottawa, Ontario,
Canada K1P 5V5
613-233-8891
csls@csls.ca www.csls.ca

The International Productivity Monitor is indexed in the Journal of Economic Literature (JEL) on CD, e-JEL, and EconLit.
ISSN 1492-9759 print
ISSN 1492-9767 on-line